Logline

A desperate and brutish nobleman arrives at a country estate and demands an unyielding widow to pay a debt owed by her deceased husband.

Short Synopsis

In late 19th century Russia, the young nobleman Grigory Smirnov arrives at the estate of the widow Elena Popova to collect a debt owed by her late husband. He has traveled many miles, with no luck collecting payment from his other debtors. When Popova delays the repayment, he decides to stay uninvited until paid, whatever the consequences. An escalating confrontation ensues, in which they bare their distaste for the opposite sex and for one another.
